When he appeared before a congres- chooses from voting privileges. sional committee considering his appointment as secretary of agriculture, Orville Freeman readily admitted he wasn't an expert on farming, but that he was willing to learn.

After less than six months in office, we hope that Mr. Freeman is now an expert on the multitudinous aspects of farming, because if the Cochran-Freeman farm bill becomes law, he will be asbolutely in charge of every chicken, every cow, and every sprig of crop that grows anywhere in the 50 states.

Charles B. Shuman, president of the American Farm Bureau, speaking in behalf of more than a million U.S. farm families, pointed out why this bill would place all power over America's largest industry in Mr. Freeman's hands.

Under the plan, he reported, Mr. Freeman and his assistants and field men would hand pick the farmers who would "advise" the department on programs for the crops they grow.

But Mr. Freeman is under no compulsion to accept even the advice of the men he selects, and in fact can dismiss them if he desires. He can also place his own alternative program on the ballot when the farmers go to vote on the program. He can "exempt" any farmers he gressional appropriations.

The city man at the head of the Agriculture Department will have the final say in acreage allotments. Already, such allotments have brought new farms into, say, wheat production, while cutting down the wheat regular wheat farmers are allowed to grow.

He can put a ceiling on the amount of federal largesse any farm may receive, while putting a ceiling on what its crops will bring in the free market-spelling financial distress for the farmers who have proved themselves most effi-

'This Will Help-I Hope!'

If that doesn't make the Secretary of Highways a fine little land commissar - one who literally by a mere whim may deprive a citizen of his real estate - then television idol Castro is indeed a piker!

Oh, of course that wouldn't happen here—and unquestionably it would not under Pennsylvania's present secretary of highways.

But there is always the chance of a change in secretaries! In fact a new one may well move in when a new governor takes office in 1963! It is true that all public officials are not crooks - but it

Remember the turnpike scandals of recent years, the cinder scandals also of recent vintage - and now the current graft scandal in Philadelphia, just to cite a few?

The point is it can happen, and a hot-for-dog political administration on Capitol Hill with a corresponding politically-motivated secretary of highways could indeed put a hot "land commissar" in Pennsylvania in delightful business!

Of course it's absurd to even remotely think that such a thing could happen here! Utterly absurd — or is it? Let's look at the case of HB 1259 a little closer: As matters stand at present, the only basis upon which the Commonwealth now may take over private property is upon absolute necessity. This is important to remember, and that 'necessity," if challenged, must be proven. The right to use the property taken is limited expressly to the purpose for which condemned. Thus — if a private owner has not given a "fee simple" title to the State (that is, complete surrender of all property rights), and the State abandons the property or ceases to use it for the specific purpose for which condemned, then the property must revert to the private holder. But - under the "highway land commissar bill" now going blithely through the Legislature, the Secretary of Highways is given the right to acquire outright "all property necessary for present and future highway purposes." That is a pretty all-inclusive stipulation. Does it include three or 300 acres under the guise of "highway purposes" and shall the time be three or 100 years - or until the end of that particular Secretary's administration? There is no limitation spelled out for the words "present" and "future." In effect, it's up to one man, who may - or may not - be

More Trouble Looming -Castro agents are actively conducting a new anti-U.S. campaign in Panama. Their latest clamor is that the Panama-Canal Zone and the canal be "neutralized." Nominal leader of this drive is Professor Diogenes Arosemena of the University of Panama. He has long been associated with leftist movements.

Two leading leftists have returned to Guatemala, the first Latin American country to fall under Red domination, until President Arbenz was booted out in 1954. They are Carlos Manuel Pellecer, second secretary of the Guatemalan Communist party and a so-called 'peasant leader"; and Victor Manuel Gutierrez, one-time head of the leftist-controlled Confederation of Workers.

Both are now back in Guatemala singing the praises of Castro and busily endeavoring to undermine the regime of President Miguel Ydigoras Fuentes.
